LABOR MEN TALK ON INJUNCTIONS

Recommendation That Court's Orders Be Defied Is Modified.

By the Federation.

WORK OF THE FEDERATION.

Mitchell Declares He Will Go to Prison, But Will Pay No Fine.

DENVER (Colo.), November 19.—

The entire session of the American Federation of Labor convention today was given over to the consideration of the committee's reports on the president's report. Two sections caused a prolonged debate and a vote was reached on only one, that referring to litigation with regard to labor.

The report of the committee recommending that injunctions be disregarded was defeated on a roll call, 11,272 to 3576, and a modification of the report, along the line of Gompers' report, was adopted.

The rest of the session was taken up in discussing the section of the report referring to the political action of the federation leaders. In this section the committee criticized the action of Daniel J. Keefe, for not acting with the rest of the executive council. It has been announced that the Journeymen Barbers' union has decided to begin a fight for shorter hours.

When the report on the president's report was called for Gompers resigned the chair to Joseph F. Valentine, seventh vice-president of the federation. It was decided to take up the report of the committee on president's report serial. Each subject in the report was commented on and approved by the committee and as the reading proceeded the convention endorsed the recommendations of the committee. The action of President Gompers, as related in his report, in regard to the Buck Stove and Range Company injunction was unanimously endorsed by a rising vote.

There was no discussion of the committee's report until the sub-head, "Litigation harassing labor," was reached. On this subject the committee declared that when a Judge issued an injunction in labor disputes it is the duty of organized labor to disobey and go to jail, and advised that the funds of the organization be not urged to defend any such suit, "because it believes it would be a useless expenditure."

James Duncan of the Granite Cutters, first vice-president of the federation, opposed the recommendation. He said the union men are law-abiding citizens and should proceed like any other citizens to defend themselves at all hazards. He moved to strike out the words advising the labor man to disobey the injunction.

President Andrew Furuseth of the Seamen's Union upheld the report of the committee. Furuseth said the union man was a law-abiding citizen and would not tolerate the breaking of the law on the part of the judiciary. He opposed "Judge-made law." The speaker explained what he called a "new jurisprudence which is now being imposed upon this country," and said sending to jail men who are alleged to be guilty of contempt of court was, in effect, sentencing them under the jurisdiction of a "Judge-made law." The unions would be right in taking a stand against it.

Frank T. Hawley of the Switchmen's Union opposed the report of the committee, which he termed "revolutionary and anarchistic."

Max Hayes of the Typographical Union supported the committee's report. He introduced Socialist teachings in his speech, saying: "It is the time for strong, sturdy men to reenact the stirring scenes of every revolutionary epoch. I see no reason why our leaders should not assume that role at this time and prove to the people we are a militant organization."

James M. Lynch of the Typographical Union, and T. L. Lewis of the miners, supported the amendment in somewhat extended arguments.

P. J. McCardel of the Iron and Steel Workers, chairman of the committee, defended its report. He said that men cannot be cited for contempt and thereafter defend themselves, unless the order of the Court is disregarded.

President Gompers then took a hand in the debate. "If the men and women who have been cited in injunction suits had shown a craven spirit, I should encourage all to resist this invasion of his rights, but I know of no such case," said Gompers. "I take it the intention of the committee was to make the situation acute. It is not necessary for us to make the situation acute. Our enemies have done this and will continue to do this for us. They will want their pound of flesh and their greed and avarice will be their own undoing. When an injunction is issued against me which invades my rights as a man and a citizen I am going to resist that injunction."

Gompers suggested that the entire matter be referred back to the committee and a motion to that effect was made from the floor. The proposition to refer back to committee was defeated by an overwhelming vote.

John Mitchell, at the afternoon session, offered a second amendment to the committee's report, saying, in part:

"Within a few days the courts will decide whether our president, secretary and myself shall go to jail. I do not want to go to jail, but I shall accept that judgment and I shall pay no fine."

This declaration brought cheers from the delegates.

Mitchell's amendment was to insert certain words so that the report shall read as follows: "Whenever the courts issue an injunction to regulate our personal relations we declare we will exercise all the rights and privileges guaranteed by the Constitution and laws of our country and insist that it is our duty to defend ourselves at all hazards and recommend that such be our action, taking whatever results may follow."

Several other delegates discussed the amendments and Representative Furuseth closed the discussion with a defense of the committee's report. His resolution and the Mitchell amendments were voted on together.

A roll-call was demanded to settle the entire question. The amendments were adopted by a vote of 11,272 to 3576.

The next section of the president's report referred to the political action of Gompers and the executive council during the late Presidential campaign, under the caption: "Legislation and Political Action." The report describes the actions of the president and executive council along this line. The committee in their report endorsed their actions.

Max Hayes, of the Typographical Union, objected to the report of the committee and argued that if the federation wanted to go into politics it would be better for it to support the Socialist party in preference to the Democratic. Several other delegates spoke in opposition to the committee report, but a vote was not reached when the convention adjourned until tomorrow morning.
